

Updated XSD schema files

A new version of the XSD schema files have been published which can be found within WMDA share -BMDW Public access page.

The reason for this update was that for proper functioning of the new data processing process, we need to know which version of the XSD schema files are used by the listing organisation to create their XML files. Additionally, also certain business rules might be only applicable to specific versions.

To alleviate some of your concerns around having to adapt your present XML files to the new XSD changes, we have made a conscious decision to accept XML files based on 2 versions of XSD schema files, i.e the current version and previous version. Any XML files without schema version are assumed to be based on version 2.0.

If you haven't started your implementation to create XML files, please use the latest version 2.1.
